Teachers are Talking
Is the Nation Listening

www.teachdocumentary.com

TEACH, Teachers Are Talking, Is the Nation Listening brings an important perspective to the national education debate that is currently being dominated by a corporate led agenda to privatize education and blame teachers for everything that is wrong with education in this country. This documentary takes on many questions about No Child Left Behind, high stakes testing, unequal distribution of education resources, and schools dominated by data driven curriculum instead of providing an education that is dynamic, creative, exciting, and joyful. We hope to give dignity and appreciation to the passion, commitment and insight of those who make the choice to devote their lives to educating all of our nation's children. TEACH features interviews, public hearings, rallies, public debates, and news events that explore the national debate that is currently raging about our educational policies and seeks to expose what's really happening.
